We are proud to announce that the lifecycle of the Erasmus+ Project ECOLES - Economic and Consumer Literacy in European Schools Education has been successfully completed after 18 months of hard work, productive results and constructive transnational cooperation.

#ECOLES was designed with the purpose of enhancing students' skills and instructing them to address and understand their needs in the rapidly changing modern way of living, with regard to their economic and consumer rights.

The consortium of the project is very excited about the continuation of what has been produced in these two years. We are confident that we have done our best to reach out to local schools, educators and students and hopeful that our educational materials will serve as necessary tools for promoting economic and consumer literacy in education, at national and European level.

Partners from Bulgaria, Cyprus, Greece, Ireland, Poland, and Estonia have worked meticulously to develop the learning materials and all activities implemented throughout this inspiring and thrilling journey. It was a truly amazing ride!
